

11th International Conference of Logistic Directors in Hungary

The Hungarian Representation of EPAL participates in the 11th International Conference of Logistics Directors.

The International Conference of Logistics Directors is one of the most important logistics events in Hungary. It centres on the challenges faced by the industry, the importance of value creation, and collaboration.

The 11th International Conference of Logistics Directors focused on the challenges faced by the logistics industry, the shortage of skilled employees and digital technologies. The most burning question was the relationship of human versus machine and what the employees of the future will look like. The speakers tried to answer the question “How will automation and robots change the workplace in the future?”

Participants could listen to more than 20 presentations, and take part in different round-table discussions and team building games.

The Hungarian Representation of EPAL had the opportunity to hold an interactive presentation about EPAL Euro pallets, specifically on the matters of exchangeability, inspections and the quality classification. All participants received the quality classification guide developed by EPAL and GS 1 Germany.

The keynote speaker of the conference was Mr Tamas Szell, winner of Bocuse d’Or Europe 2016 and famous Michelin star chef, who revealed all the secrets of this important contest. It turned out that it is all about the “right” logistics.
